HANG THE HAWKS

The task is to pass from greater immaturity to lesser immaturity;

it begins by admitting your ignorance and your helplessness before all that demands to be known.

This is where we begin...

Along the road before us much must be left behind, much must be grasped anew. The ground beneath our feet is no longer stable.
Old ways are plowed up and the dust
is confusing.

It is difficult to get started.

The old season is still with us;

but the new season has its own demands.

An ember about to billow
and a beat in our brains:

issues
clash,
splash;

cool it.

Confront it.

But no one is ever really sure.

It was seventeen seconds to the happy delirium when Mike Branch returned to the game. The gym record was broken by one and the season ended with a fifty-one point spread.

Branch and Bisacca rode on Stag shoulders. The silence also rode on our shoulders—the silence that said, "Remember Pat Burke." In memory and imagination we see him again, arms high in victory; mighty Boston College had fallen.

“These are some of

Well, the job is done.

It is traditional at this point for the editor to thank his staff and perhaps offer some words of advice to the incoming staff. Rather than adhere to this format strictly, I'd like to talk about the '66 Manor totally.

From April of 1965, when we first began, until the closing days of second semester, 1966, Campion 104 was a busy place. The people that made it busy are great people and this is not a dive into sentimental reverie. One of the greatest persons that kept our phone off the hook more often than not, is Jim Findley from Bradbury, Sayles and O'Neill. I might even thank Martha Findley for letting us keep Jim out so much.

Ed Schuck assisted me in more ways than I had originally planned. Often, Ed knew more about what was going on than either Bollo or myself. Ed spearheaded a drive to attend a yearbook conference in New York in October of '65 and we are all indebted to him for his efforts.

Whatever we were discussing, Bob Bollo constantly told me that we couldn't afford to do it and when we did it anyway he never got mad. Nice job, Robert.

I'm going to do something a bit out of the ordinary at Fairfield. I'm going to thank our moderator, Father Gallarelli. Father saw fit to remain in the background throughout our work and let things happen as they did. When he made a suggestion and we didn't take it, he simply made another suggestion. Generally, that wasn't taken either.

When the decision to combine the activities section with campus life was made, Ed and I wanted an editor with a strong mind and a reservoir of ideas. We selected Ron Stone (R. S.) and his efforts appear a few pages back. R. S. had the toughest job and he was perhaps the toughest one to get moving. With the assistance of Bob Mazzochi I think the campus life section of this edition of the Manor is a pace setter.

As I said earlier, our job began in April of 1965. One of the men who worked from the very beginning is Bob Levens. His section was in final stages when we returned in September of '65. Ol' ticklish Bob was always available for the most boring small jobs that just had to be done.

the poses we struck”

The roommates Stewart and Morris were a unique contribution to the Manor. Bob's pithy phrases fulfill our literary intent; namely to portray Fairfield University, 1965-1966. Paul's sports section is probably one of the best in the Manor's history. It is difficult to thank people like this and include all their achievements. I guess I won't even try.

The faculty section of any yearbook always presents a problem.No one seems to care for their own own picture, least of all a university professor. The modern trend in college yearbooks is making assignments like Bob Quackenbush's obsolete. But, with the help of Findley's men (Mike Fawcett, All Knoll, Bruce Laurance, Dan Winter) Quackenbush has caught our faculty as we saw them. Too often and in too many cases, this is limited to the classroom.

Ted Bukowski's staff (and I guess that includes just about all of us) provided photographic coverage of almost every event held on campus this year. I'm sorry you missed the banquet, Ted.

From the Rugby Club we borrowed Frank Quinn and used him as Art Editor. Actually, continuity was Frank's job. He was to tone down the differences between Quackenbush, Stone, and Morris. I think we gave him an impossible job.

Financially speaking, Rick Barrett nd Bill McCarthy had the most to offer. Quite honestly, without them here would have been no 1966 Manor.

A final word of thanks to Vin D'Alessandro and his partner John for their assistance and to Gail for her excellent proof reading.

Well, that's the group that did the job. They made our enemies, spent our money and produced the '66 Manor. The book, like the school, contains part of themselves. When one gives that much, no thanks could ever be sufficient from the recipient.

Ron? It's all yours . . .

Mine . . .

The cover of the 1966 Manor was designed by Francis Quinn and was executed by CRAFTCO. The cover is leatherette on 150 point binders board; is of cordova grain with the University coat of arms inlayed in metal. Cover size is nine by twelve. Paper stock is lustro dull. Type styles include 18 point Lydian Cursive for all running headlines, 10 point Baskerville for picture captions. Tempo Bold, Vogue Medium, Bodoni Straight and Bodoni Italic appear in the advertisement layouts. The binding is smythe sewn rounded and backed with head and foot bands. Printing and photography by BRADBURY, SAYLES, O'NEILL, INC. of New York City.
